Highly-acclaimed John Bradley to judge the 2017 Murrurundi Art Prize

Entries have now closed for the 2017 Murrurundi Art Prize and judging will soon be underway.

This year's adjudicator is one of Australia's most-published landscape painters - John Bradley. Mr Bradley worked as an avionics engineer, a soldier, an aircraft inspector and electronic sales engineer before moving into a management career in sales, marketing and advertising. His sales and marketing experience ultimately led John to discover his passion for painting, particularly landscapes. These days Mr Bradley is a full-time painter and art teacher.

The 2017 Murrurundi Art Prize opening night will be held at the RSL Hall on Friday May 26 from 6.30pm. The exhibition will be open until June 12.

New brochure about mental health

Singleton Mental Health Forum in conjunction with Singleton Mental Health Support Group, One Door and Singleton Council have just published a brochure which outlines the rights of designated carers along with contact information for mental health services available in Singleton.

Recent changes to the Mental Health Act allow a consumer to nominate up to two designated carers. However, it is important that people understand the nomination needs to be renewed every year, ensuring designated carers are notified if their relative or loved one is admitted to a mental health facility for treatment, if they fail to return after approved leave or if they are absent from a facility without permission.

The publication will be available from Singleton Visitor Information and Enterprise Centre, Singleton Library, Singleton Youth Venue and most medical practices.

Investing in culture

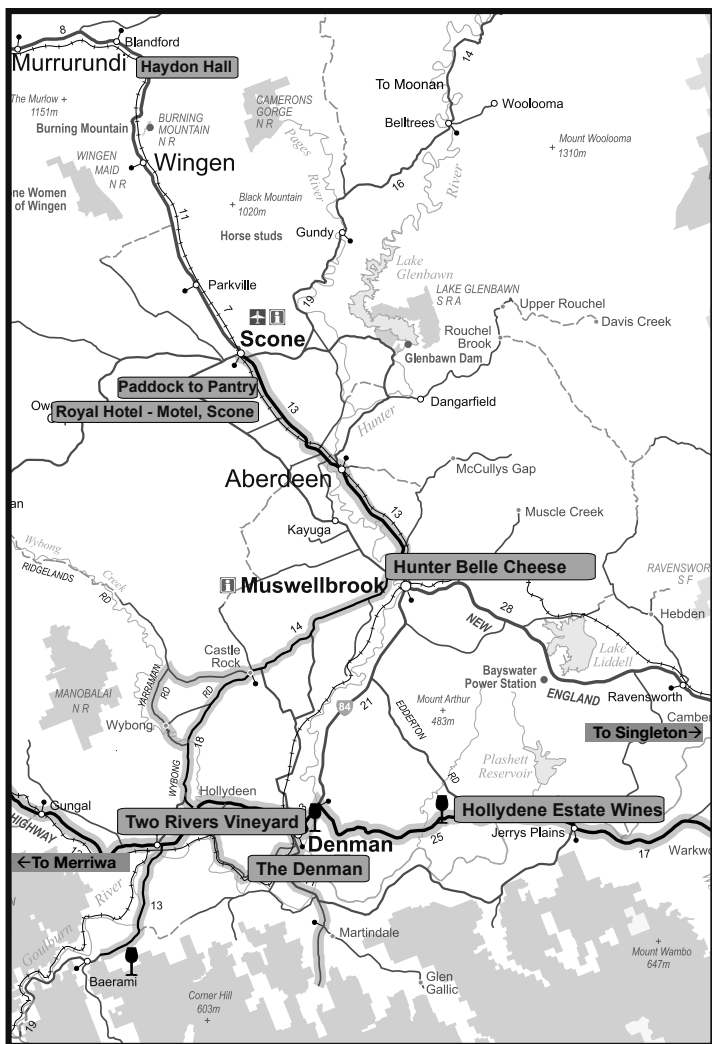

Upper Hunter Shire Council has released a draft ten-year cultural plan for public feedback.

The draft plan outlines priorities for Council's investment in the arts and cultural sector over the next decade.

The priorities, identified through community consultation, include enhancing connections between Council and community organisations, arts practitioners and cultural workers, facilitating university art student placements in the shire, increasing arts opportunities for young people, supporting Indigenous arts and cultural projects, public art projects, developing arts related infrastructure and continuing support for festivals and events.

Written feedback on the draft Cultural Plan is invited until 12 June 2017.

The document can be downloaded on the Upper Hunter Shire Council website or viewed at Council offices in Merriwa, Murrumbidgee and Scone.

Flying-fox in Murrurundi update

About 150 people attended a two hour information session organised by Upper Hunter Shire Council, regarding the colony of around 100,000 flying-foxes located in Murrurundi on May 4.

The session covered a wide range of information about flying-fox behaviour, preventing health risks, the difficulty of successfully dispersing large colonies and some of the mitigation strategies available to manage the impact of flying-foxes.

People were able to ask questions of Council staff and representatives from NSW Office of Environment and Heritage (OEH), a veterinarian and a flying fox research scientist.

RV travellers welcomed in the Upper Hunter

Aberdeen, Merriwa, Murrurundi and Scone are officially 'RV friendly towns'.

Aberdeen is the most recent town in the Upper Hunter Shire to earn recognition from the Campervan and Motorhome Club of Australia (CMCA) for having facilities aimed at those touring in self-contained recreational vehicles.

RV Friendly status is key to accessing a tourism market estimated to be worth $2.5 billion annually across Australia. The number of registered RVs in Australia is expected to grow to more than 700,000 vehicles by 2020.
