what's on

Big lineup for Scone's Literary Festival

Journalist and women's rights advocate Tracey Spicer will make her way to the Upper Hunter for the Scone Literary Festival in November.

Spicer's femoir The Good Girl Stripped Bare lifted the lid on the sexual harassment and discrimination that is a daily occurrence for women working in Australian media.

This year's theme for the festival is the magic and power of literature. Local treasure Phillip Adams will be in conversation with Guardian Australian journalist and author, David Marr, and Barry Jones and Kate McClymont round out the list of journalists and broadcasters who will share their talents with the 2018 festival.

Tickets go on sale September 1, for more information log on to

Creative juices will flow

The New South Wales Floral Art Association will visit Scone for the first time on August 17 and 18 to hold a floral art education event with the Scone Garden Club.

Head along to check out floral demonstrations, workshops and competitions at St Luke's Hall on Liverpool Street. If you're feeling competitive, why not submit an entry in the children, novice, open or homegrown section?

You can just view the displays for a gold coin donation, check out the NSW Floral Art Association website for more details.

Join in the fun at St Alban's Spring Fair

These frosty mornings make it hard to believe that spring is just around the corner and so is Muswellbrook's St Alban's Parish Spring Fair.

The committee is hard at work preparing for its annual Spring Fair on Saturday August 25. Enjoy a fun day at the Fair located at the beautiful grounds of St Alban's Anglican Church (just over the railway line).

Attractions include a jumping castle, animal petting zoo, pony rides, face painting and lots more to keep the kids amused.

There will be plenty of stalls to browse for mum and dad as well as professional barista coffee, barbeque lunch and a chocolate wheel running throughout the morning packed full of awesome prizes. View the quilts and art display, vintage cars, and community displays.

If you are looking for something for the family to do, come on down and have some fun at the Spring Fair.

Money raised will go towards supporting charities locally and abroad.

Don't miss this wonderful event which kicks off at 9am and is in operation until 2pm on Saturday 25 August.

Stunning art and giftware

Are you looking for a truly unique, high quality gift for a friend or loved one?

Murrurundi's Michael Reid Gallery has a host of fantastic gifts in the shop. Right now, there are just a handful of Swiss Army Blankets available. The blankets were sourced from the W68 army acquisition program, after 1968. The 'K' on each blanket is for Kaserne Barracks in Basel, Switzerland. A range of other blankets, rugs and scarves are also available to help keep you snug as a bug in a rug during these last moments of winter. Don't forget to check out the Big Brown Dog range which also includes beautiful candles and food items.

Kate Summers sold out – but do come along to view

The works of civil engineer turned artist, Kate Summers, are now on show at Murrurundi's Michael Reid Gallery.

This show of quirky objects is all colour, texture and subtle observation. Like Margaret Olley before her, Kate Summers displays a sense of history and strong visual education in her work. If you're hoping to buy you'll be disappointed, as the exhibition has already sold out, but worth a look none the less.

Inter-dog aggression: Dog fights between dogs that live in the same house By Mel Prunster (pictured)

Fights can occur between dogs that know each other well and see each other often. These fights usually occur when dogs are unclear of their role within the household. This can happen for a variety of reasons – illness or death of another dog in the same household, a new pet (dog or cat), visitors in the house for a long period of time, new babies or even simply being over-excited or fearful.

Fighting may then occur between dogs while they try to figure out what the change of circumstance means for their ranks and roles within the family. Often, this happens when the owner is present. The dogs are trying to establish new boundaries.

When these fights occur, always remember, SAFETY FIRST. Never come between two dogs that are fighting as they can injure people very badly without meaning to. Use loud noises, water (like the spray from a hose) or throw things to try and distract the dogs.

Dog fight wounds require immediate veterinary attention. Dogs 'grab and shake' when they fight so there can be a lot of damage to skin and muscles that can't be seen from the surface. Dogs also have lots of nasty bacteria in their mouths and wounds from bites are highly likely to get seriously infected.

Preventing dog fights:

- Always feed dogs separately – whether it's kibble or a big juicy bone, fighting over food is by far the most common cause of dog fights
- Dogs are more likely to fight if they are already over-excited or scared. Try and keep your dog friends calm and settled
- Some dogs are very bad at interpreting body language signals from other dogs that may say "leave me alone" or "I'm very angry, go away NOW"
- Prevention is always better than cure. If your dogs have been in serious fights before, never leave them alone unsupervised and always have collars/harnesses on

There may be an underlying emotional health problem in one or more of the dogs involved. 1 in 5 dogs is thought to have some kind of anxiety disorder. If the problem keeps happening and seems uncontrollable, seek help! The Pet Medical Behaviour Team has vets, nurses and trainers all ready to help sort out your doggy family and make sure they are friends, not enemies.

Pet Medical has seen an overwhelming number of dog fights this year, and for this reason we will be holding an information night on inter-dog aggression on Thursday 2nd August @ 6pm. Spots are limited so please call us on 6541 1555 to secure a spot.
